RESEARCH INTEREST

Sustainable development, regional growth, international trade, energy economics, institutional quality, innovation

PROFILE SUMMARY

My research lies at the intersection of international trade, regional development and growth, and the economics of sustainability. I focus on how variations in trade dynamics, institutional quality, and environmental policies shape regional and national competitiveness. By combining advanced empirical methods with policy-oriented analysis, I aim to provide insights that contribute to green transformation, inclusive growth, and resilient regional economies. Looking forward, my work seeks to deepen our understanding of how trade and institutional quality interact with sustainability goals to foster long-term economic development.
